Case No.: 2:22-cv-02133-GMN-BNW
ORDER

Pending before the Court is the Motion to Dismiss, (ECF No. 7), filed by Defendants Las Vegas Metropolitan Police Department (“LVMPD”), Sergeant Kashif Summers (“Sergeant Summers”), and Captain Kristine Buist (“Captain Buist”) (collectively, “Defendants”). Plaintiff Rayven LaFua (“Plaintiff”) filed a Response, (ECF No. 12), to which Defendants filed a Reply, (ECF No. 13). For the reasons discussed below, the Court GRANTS the Motion to Dismiss.

I. BACKGROUND

This case arises from an incident occurring after Plaintiff, an officer employed by LVMPD, was involved in a car accident while off duty. (Compl. ¶ 9, ECF No. 1). Plaintiff alleges that a driver struck his vehicle and, despite causing the accident, the driver refused to stop. (Id. ¶¶ 9–10). Plaintiff called 911 and followed the other vehicle. (Id.). When the vehicle stopped at an intersection, Plaintiff contends he approached the driver’s side of the vehicle and directed the driver to turn off the engine; when the driver refused, Plaintiff reached into the vehicle himself to shut off the vehicle’s engine. (Id. ¶¶ 10–11). A physical altercation ensued between Plaintiff and the other driver. (Id. ¶ 12). Plaintiff alleges that, because Plaintiff is a police officer, representatives from the Criminal Internal Affairs Bureau (“CIAB”) were called

1 to the scene. (Id.). Sergeant Summers also responded, and informed Plaintiff that CIAB wanted 2 to speak with him. (Id. ¶ 13). Plaintiff “did not believe he was free to leave [because] the 3 sergeant assigned to the Enterprise area command told him he was not allowed to leave the 4 area.” (Id. ¶ 14).

5 Plaintiff declined to speak with Sergeant Summers about the incident and requested that 6 a union representative be present. (Id. ¶ 15). When Dan Coyne (“Mr. Coyne”), a representative
 7 from Las Vegas Police Protective Association (“LVPPA”), arrived at the scene, Plaintiff
 8 explained to Mr. Coyne that he had been detained for approximately two hours, and “did not 9 feel that he was free to leave although he wanted to go home.” (Id. ¶ 16). Plaintiff alleges that 10 Mr. Coyne spoke with Captain Buist and informed her that Plaintiff had been detained for 11 approximately two hours, in violation of his constitutional rights and Nevada law. (Id. ¶ 16). A 12 few minutes later, Sergeant Summers informed Mr. Coyne that Plaintiff was free to leave. (Id. ¶ 13 18).

14 Based on these facts, Plaintiff claims the following causes of action against Defendants: 15 (1) unlawful detention in violation of the Nevada Revised Statutes (“NRS”) §§ 171.123(4) and 16 171.1231; (2) wrongful arrest, in violation of NRS § 171.124 et seq.; (3) negligent training and 17 supervision against LVMPD; (4) Intentional Infliction of Emotional Distress (“IIED”); (5) false 18 imprisonment; and (6) Monell liability against LVMPD.

19 Defendants filed its motion to dismiss, alleging Plaintiff failed to state a claim upon 20 which relief can be granted for his asserted claims of: (1) municipal (Monell) liability; (2) 21 negligent training and supervision; and (3) intentional infliction of emotional distress.” (Mot.
 22 Dismiss (“MTD”) 2:3–7, ECF No. 7).

1 II. LEGAL STANDARD

2 Dismissal is appropriate under Rule 12(b)(6) where a pleader fails to state a claim upon 3 which relief can be granted. Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6); Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 4 555 (2007). A pleading must give fair notice of a legally cognizable claim and the grounds on 5 which it rests, and although a court must take all factual allegations as true, legal conclusions
 6 couched as factual allegations are insufficient. Twombly, 550 U.S. at 555. Accordingly, Rule 7 12(b)(6) requires “more than labels and conclusions, and a formulaic recitation of the elements
 8 of a cause of action will not do.” Id. “To survive a motion to dismiss, a complaint must contain 9 sufficient factual matter, accepted as true, to ‘state a claim to relief that is plausible on its 10 face.’” Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678 (2009) (quoting Twombly, 550 U.S. at 570). “A 11 claim has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to 12 draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged.” Id. This 13 standard “asks for more than a sheer possibility that a defendant has acted unlawfully.” Id.

14 If a court grants a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim, leave to amend should be 15 granted unless it is clear that the deficiencies of the complaint cannot be cured by amendment.
 16 DeSoto v. Yellow Freight Sys., Inc., 957 F.2d 655, 658 (9th Cir. 1992). Pursuant to Rule 15(a), 17 the court should “freely” give leave to amend “when justice so requires,” and in the absence of 18 a reason such as “undue delay, bad faith or dilatory motive on the part of the movant, repeated 19 failure to cure deficiencies by amendments previously allowed, undue prejudice to the opposing 20 party by virtue of allowance of the amendment, futility of the amendment, etc.” Foman v.
 21 Davis, 371 U.S. 178, 182 (1962).

22 III. DISCUSSION

23 Defendants contend that Plaintiff has failed to state a claim upon which relief can be 24 granted for the following causes of action: (1) Monell liability; (2) IIED; and (3) negligent 25 training and supervision. The Court discusses each in turn.

1 A. Monell Liability

2 The United States Supreme Court has held that, when a municipal policy of some nature 3 is the cause of an unconstitutional action taken by employees, the municipality may be held 4 liable. See Monell v. Dep’t of Social Services, 436 U.S. 658, 690 (1978) (“Our analysis of the 5 legislative history . . . compels the conclusion that Congress did intend municipalities and other 6 local government units to be included among those persons to whom § 1983 applies.”)
7 (emphasis omitted). For a municipality to be held liable, however, the unconstitutional action 8 must “implement[] or execute[] a policy statement, ordinance, regulation, or decision 9 officially adopted and promulgated” by municipal officers, or must be a “custom” of the 10 municipal officers, even when such custom is not formally adopted or approved by the 11 municipality. Id. at 690–91.

12 A plaintiff alleging Monell violations must establish an affirmative link between the 13 policy or custom and the constitutional violation alleged. City of Oklahoma City v. Tuttle, 471 14 U.S. 808, 823 (1985). Relying on Waggy v. Spokane County Washington, 594 F.3d 707 (9th 15 Cir. 2010), Defendants contend that Plaintiff “must allege facts which, if true, show that the 16 defendant actually had a constitutionally impermissible policy, practice, or custom” to survive a 17 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss. (MTD 6:4–7). In response, Plaintiff argues “it is not required to 18 identify a specific policy LVMPD violated” and that Plaintiff’s Complaint “demonstrates a 19 procedure, custom, or practice of detaining an officer until an IAB investigation has been 20 concluded regardless of how long it takes and what rights have been violated.” (Resp. 5:4–27).
21 Specifically, Plaintiff argues, “Since the detention time is limited to sixty (60) minutes, it is not 22 reasonable to believe that the initial responding officer on the scene could identify an involved 23 party as an LVMPD officer, go through the chain of command to contact IAB to respond, and 24 for an IAB representative(s) to arrive at the scene and conduct an interview all within the sixty 25 //

1 (60) minutes of the first contact.” (Resp. 6:17–25). Plaintiff fails, however, to include this 2 argument in his Complaint, and instead raises it for the first time in his Response brief.

3 The Court finds that Plaintiff fails to adequately plead his Monell claim. Plaintiff’s
 4 Complaint is devoid of any factual allegations supporting his contention that a policy, practice
 5 or custom of LVMPD prompted the allegedly unconstitutional acts here. Instead, Plaintiff’s 6 Complaint notes only that Sergeant Summers and Captain Buist, “following LVMPD’s custom, 7 practices, and policies while acting under color of state law, engag[ed] in an unlawful search 8 and seizure,” thus depriving Plaintiff of his liberty. (Compl. ¶ 61).

9 In his Response, Plaintiff argues that LVMPD’s practice of detaining individuals until a 10 full investigation could be completed by CIAB was guaranteed to violate an individual’s civil 11 liberties because “in almost all circumstances,” the individual would be detained “for more than 12 sixty minutes.” (Resp. 6:21–2). But Plaintiff fails to allege the same in his Complaint.¹
 13 Accordingly, the Court DISMISSES Plaintiff’s Monell claim without prejudice.

14 B. Intentional Infliction of Emotional Distress

15 A plaintiff alleging IIED must show: (1) extreme and outrageous conduct with either the 16 intention of, or reckless disregard for, causing emotional distress; (2) the plaintiff’s having 17 suffered sever or extreme emotional distress; and (3) actual or proximate causation. See Olivero 18 v. Lowe, 995 P.2d 1023, 1025 (Nev. 2000). Extreme and outrageous conduct is conduct that 19 goes “outside all possible bounds of decency and is regarded as utterly intolerable in a civilized 20 community.” Maduike v. Agency Rent-A-Car, 953 P.2d 24, 26 (Nev. 1998) (quotation marks 21 omitted).

22 Defendants argue that Plaintiff’s IIED claim must fail because he “has not identified any 23 conduct by any Defendant . . . which could amount to extreme and outrageous conduct.” (MTD

24
 25 ¹ The Court does not opine, nor it does suggest, that inclusion of this argument in Plaintiff’s Complaint would be sufficient to adequately plead Monell liability.

1 7:8–9). Moreover, Defendants contend that Plaintiff “includes no factual assertions that would 2 explain how the allegedly extreme and outrageous conduct was done with the intention of, or 3 reckless disregard for, causing emotional distress.” (MTD 7:16–18). The Court agrees with 4 Defendants.

5 Plaintiff fails to allege any facts that would support his conclusory statements that 6 “Defendants’ actions described herein were extreme and outrageous[.]” (Compl. ¶ 51). In his 7 Response, Plaintiff points only to the following allegations to support his IIED claim:
 8 (1) Plaintiff was told by a sergeant that he was not free to leave the area; (2) Plaintiff was held 9 for two hours in violation of his constitutional rights and Nevada law; and (3) Captain Buist 10 told Plaintiff he was not free to leave. None of these facts, taken together or separately, can be 11 considered “extreme and outrageous conduct.” Accordingly, the Court DISMISSES Plaintiff’s 12 IIED claim without prejudice.

13 C. Negligent Training and Supervision

14 Defendants argue that Plaintiff’s negligent training and supervision claim must fail as a 15 matter of law because “decisions relating to the hiring, training and supervision of employees” 16 fall within Nevada’s discretionary-function immunity, NRS § 41.032. (MTD 7:19–8:18).

17 Under Nevada law, state actors are entitled to discretionary-function immunity if the 18 decision: “(1) involve[s] an element of individual judgment or choice and (2) [is] based on 19 considerations of social, economic, or political policy.” Martinez v. Maruszczak, 168 P.3d 720, 20 727 (Nev. 2007). Nevada’s “discretionary-function immunity statute mirrors the Federal Tort 21 Claims Act,” and thus the Court may review federal precedent regarding the FTCA when 22 determining whether state actors are entitled to discretionary-function immunity under NRS 23 § 41.032. Id.

24 When determining whether discretionary-function immunity exists, the court must 25 “assess cases on their facts, keeping in mind Congress’ purpose in enacting the exception: to 1 prevent judicial second-guessing of legislative and administrative decisions grounded in social,

 2 economic, and political policy through the medium of an action in tort.” See Martinez, 168 P.3d
 3 at 729 (quoting United States v. S.A. Empresa de Viacao Aerea Rio Grandense (Varig Airlines), 4 467 U.S. 797, 814 (1984)). In Vickers v. United States, 228 F.3d 944 (9th Cir. 2000), the Ninth 5 Circuit noted that “decisions relating to the hiring training, and supervision of employees
 6 usually invoke policy judgment of the type Congress intended the discretionary function
 7 exception to shield.” 228 F.3d at 950. The Nevada Supreme Court affirmed this view in Paulos
 8 v. FCHI, 456 P.3d 589, 595–96 (Nev. 2020) (citing Vickers and noting that NRS § 41.032 bars 9 a claim against LVMPD based on LVMPD’s negligent hiring, training, and supervision).

10 Plaintiff notes, “While LVMPD’s decision to hire and train officers may involve an 11 element of choice, training officers to violate a person’s constitutional and statutory rights is 12 not a choice LVMPD can make.” (Resp. 7:25–28). However, Plaintiff fails to plead sufficient 13 facts in his Complaint detailing how officers are trained to intentionally violate a person’s 14 constitutional right. As noted previously, Plaintiff argues in his Response brief that 15 Defendant’s practice of detaining individuals while CIAB investigates is guaranteed to violate 16 one’s constitutional rights because it is impossible for CIAB to complete its investigation 17 within sixty minutes. (See supra 4:17–21); (see also Resp. 6:17–25). Plaintiff’s argument, 18 however, requires the Court to assume CIAB investigators are trained to take longer than sixty 19 minutes while conducting their investigation, thus effectuating a practice that violates one’s 20 constitutional rights. The Court declines to make this assumption and therefore finds that 21 Plaintiff’s negligent training and supervision claim, without additional factual allegations, fails.
 22 Accordingly, the Court DISMISSES Plaintiff’s negligent training and supervision claim 23 without prejudice.
